

Cloud Accounting - Be Prepared

Cloud accounting is growing increasingly popular, giving businesses instant access to live accounting information wherever there is an internet connection.

The ability to create estimates, personalise invoices and send statements, all at the click of a button, not only saves time and unnecessary paperwork, but also makes communicating with clients faster and more efficient.

In addition, live bank downloads give a clear overview of your business anywhere anytime. When it comes to talking to your accountant, the fact that both parties have access to the same data means that queries can be sorted out quickly and efficiently.

From a security point of view cloud accounting removes the need for endless back-ups as all data is automatically backed up on an ongoing basis by the cloud provider.

There are undoubtedly many advantages to the cloud when it comes to managing financial accounts and freeing up more of your time to grow your business. It is, however, important to ensure you choose the best package for your business, and that once in place you are using it to its full potential.

At Lentells we advise not only on the best package, but also work with you to ensure an efficient transition, and provide ongoing advice and training.
